We feel

MR. ROBERT R. WEBBER is the guiding light of our school.

The influence of our headmaster, Mr. Robert R. Webber, is felt in every department of the school, in every phase of our school life, and will continue to guide us in our future undertakings. Under his guidance, we choose the classes and courses that will be most beneficial to us and learn the requisites of fair play in sports and the necessity of an intelligent choice of recreation. Through the friendly interested guidance of Mr. Webber, the students of Chelsea High School are well prepared for their future undertakings, whether a college, a business school, or a job. Our futures are greatly affected by his influence in building us into good citizens.

INTEREST

in our activities

MR. SUMNER M. DAVIS, our submaster, and Mr. James J. Cotter, our junior master, efficiently assist Mr. Webber. During their years at Chelsea High School, both men have won many friends.

They aid

It is a fact that the administration is the heart of a school. From here issue forth orders, here records are kept, and here is the machinery that runs The Chelsea Senior High School.

Mr. Davis, our submaster, and Mr. Cotter, our junior master, aid our school by doing specific work and by co-operating with our headmaster, Mr. Webber.

Miss Kotzen, aided by Miss Donnelly, efficiently handles the clerical work as the office hums with activity.

THE CLERICAL WORK of the school is ably managed by Miss Etta Kotzen with the assistance of Miss Ann E. Donnelly.

our Headmaster

MR. FRANK J. HERLIHY, a former member of the Chelsea High School faculty, is the superintendent of the Chelsea Public Schools and is very familiar with the problems confronting us. Mr. Herlihy is a graduate of Boston College and received his master's degree from Boston University.

Working earnestly with the faculty

As we see Mr. Webber busily conferring with Miss Ella M. Deasy, we realize that it is through our headmaster's interested direction of our efficient faculty that we, as students of Chelsea Senior High School, receive the expert training so necessary for entering into the world of tomorrow.

ENGLISH — and the world of English is the basis for successful living and will add enrichment to our lives. Our whole society is based on words. It is for this reason that our English department operates and prepares us for our future in society. For, whatever we do tomorrow, into whatever occupation or profession we go, our success or failure will depend on our background in English. Our expert faculty functions smoothly under the capable direction of Mr. Max E. Stewart. Together they provide us with the firm background we so need.

MR. STEWART shows the place to these students, who are about to enact a scene from Shakespeare's "As You Like It," while Miss Kintz discusses another great play, Rostand's "Cyrano de Bergerac."

tomorrow

WITH THE USE of the unabridged dictionary Miss Hand helps to increase the vocabulary of her class. Another important phase of English is oral composition which Miss Cogan emphasizes. Grammar is the basis of correct English, says Miss Bligh to her class.

MISS BURNETT, who knows the importance of proper punctuation, dictates the rules for the use of the comma to her class.

A MISPLACED MODIFIER certainly does change the meaning of a sentence as Miss Kuhn's English class finds out.

The courses in English train for clear, accurate, and intelligent use of the English language. We study in detail the three phases of English, speaking, writing, and reading. In speaking we are trained to express ourselves clearly and effectively. We learn the art of self-expression through oral reports, storytelling, parliamentary procedure, and group discussion. In writing we learn the fundamentals of grammar, spelling, punctuation, sentence structure, composition, and vocabulary building. In reading we are introduced to the great literary heritage of the English speaking world. We study different types of literature, novels, plays, essays, and poetry. We learn to read better and to understand what we read. To master these three phases of English is to hold the wheel and to drive off with our future secure.

MISS COX has just asked the class to explain the difference between the active and passive voice, and by the looks of confidence on the girls' faces, they all must know.

MISS CONNOLLY smiles as one of her students gives several essentials of good English, namely, proper punctuation, correct grammar, and a good vocabulary. • He further explains that run-on sentences, misplaced modifiers, and slang words denote poor English.

PROPER SENTENCE STRUCTURE is one of the necessities of good English, proves Mr. Green as he shows the difference between two sentences.

MATHEMATICS — measuring our future

Our courses in mathematics at the Chelsea Senior High School give us a thorough background in this most important field—a field which in this modern world of ours has gained even a greater importance than it had in years before. When we notice that practically all of the discoveries and inventions of the past century have been brought about only through a knowledge of mathematics, we begin to understand the exceedingly prominent role this science plays in our lives. We begin to realize the broad field mathematics is and the many fine opportunities it offers us.

If some field of mathematics is not our aim, however, in whatever field of concentration we do hope to enter we will find mathematics a great asset in our later life. Our success or failure in any form of scientific work depends a great deal upon our knowledge of mathematics. The businessman, the banker, the aviator, and even the artist finds his mathematical training invaluable.

In our mathematics classrooms we learn to think, and to think with accuracy and clearness. Our studies of geometry and algebra train our minds to be more alert and observing. We learn to reason logically and therefore we become more capable of attacking in an intelligent manner the problems which are apt to arise in our everyday life. We learn exactness and precision and the necessity of complete correctness.

We will reap many rewards from a conscientious study of mathematics and from it our lives will be enriched always.

MR. O'BRIEN goes over an important proposition in geometry; namely, the square of the hypotenuse is equal to the sum of the squares of the two sides, while Mr. J. Ridge discusses the homework assignment, which must have been easy by the looks on the students' faces.

WHILE MISS BURKE works out the area of a trapezoid by the formula  $A = \frac{1}{2} h (b + b_1)$ , Mr. Boyd explains a new proposition to his solid geometry class.

MR. GARVEY EXPLAINS a difficult problem to his math class while Mr. Lowell explains how math in the tree of knowledge affects the basic and applied sciences.

SCIENCE — future horizons

In this scientific age in which we live it is important for each of us to have some basic knowledge of the sciences. The three divisions of our science department all play an integral part in our lives. In our biology, our chemistry, and our physics classrooms we learn a great many things applicable to our everyday living. By studying these sciences we come to be more familiar with ourselves and our surroundings. We learn the scientist's methods and exactness while observing and recording cultivates in us accuracy and alertness. We are taught to take nothing for granted, to observe with our minds open. It is here that we learn many sound principles that in years to come will make us better individuals and better citizens of our country. It is indeed knowledge of science that makes us have a better understanding of the world we live in.

MR. ANDERSON shows the proper way of pouring acid into a graduate. Visual instruction plays an important part in the teaching of the sciences. Mr. Pucko explains to his class the diagram which he has drawn on the blackboard.

MR. STAPLES demonstrates to his physics class the theory of molecular motion, namely, that molecules are constantly moving.

COMMERCIAL DEPT. — wheels of business

Often in predominantly academic schools one finds an antipathy towards business education. This attitude is based on a lack of realization that the knowledge of business skills will smooth our daily living. Consequently it often becomes necessary for business education teachers to sell their program. In our school the value of commercial training is recognized.

Mr. Webber has always shown a keen interest in this department. Instruction is received under the guidance of Miss Bennett, Miss Harris, Mrs. Malone, Miss Sylvester, Miss Sharood, Mr. Greenfield, Mr. White, and Mr. Clarke, the head of this department.

To the graduates we owe much, for in their success in the business world is measured the value of the training received in our department. In the past three months alone fifty girls have been placed. Those pursuing the secretarial field receive thorough preparation in all its phases.

THE MANIPULATION of adding machines, calculators, and comptometers is very important in an office as the girls in Mrs. Malone's class fully realize.

EACH DAY the girls in the stenography class pass their homework into Miss Harris, who carefully goes over each symbol in order to help the girls become good stenographers in the future.

THESE GIRLS ARE busily working at their office practice assignments while the future bookkeepers carefully go over their ledgers with Miss Bennett.

MR. CLARKE goes over a problem with his class while the students in Mr. Greenfield's room hunt for a country on the globe and the girls in the typing class get set for that test.

LANGUAGES —

In years ahead we will remember pleasant hours in our foreign language classrooms. Gratefully we will recall the days of preparation—preparation as thorough as our principal himself. We will realize that our sometimes trying lessons were not in vain when we read scientific books in German, finding the meaning of unfamiliar words through their Latin derivations, carry on commerce with South America, or converse in French, the language of culture. Our lives will be forever enriched, and we will always be thankful to our school, our teachers, and our principal.

FORSAN ET HAEC olim meminisse iuvabit. It certainly will be pleasing to remember those happy days in Miss Deasy's Vergil class.

WITH THE BEAUTIFUL PICTURES of the French coastline in the background as inspiration, it is no wonder that these pupils listen to Miss Connolly with avid interest.

friendly bands

ALL EYES are on the board as the students put on the Spanish sentences that were in a recent test Miss McKenna gave. Miss Severance must be checking those German assignments.

MISS A. BRODBINE asks a very confident student to decline an irregular verb in French, while Miss M. Brodbine aids her class in translating that Spanish assignment.

DOMESTIC ARTS —

Happy is the homemaker who has had a good course in cooking during high school days because there she learned the essentials of nutrition. It was there she learned what good meals are and how they are prepared. It was there she learned to plan meals economically and artfully. Her family is reaping the benefit of high school hours well spent.

MISS CASEY, a newcomer to the faculty of Chelsea High, empties a cake from the tin. It looks good, doesn't it?

home builders

The girl who has mastered the art of sewing will find this one of her delightful tasks and not the burdensome chore it might have been. She will take pleasure in fashioning a dress from a bolt of cloth or remaking an older garment for a new season's wear. Here at the Senior High School the girls are taught those fundamentals of sewing which will make them better, happier homemakers.

WHILE THE SEWING class below busy themselves with sewing, ironing, and fitting, the two girls above see how the finished article looks.

HERE THE GIRLS put to work the know-how they have acquired in sewing. As those who have tried it know, it's a great feat to get the pattern placed right.

PROBLEMS of DEMOCRACY —

Problems of Democracy is offered to acquaint the pupils with the political, economic, and social questions which they as future voters will be asked to answer. This course also enables the pupils to solve such problems as the organization and administration of the different political parties, how the citizens outside these parties help to determine policies, how these policies are carried into effect, and how our courts enforce laws and administer justice. The reasons for poverty and the causes, treatment and prevention of crime are other problems discussed in the social field. It is here under the direction of the capable teachers of our Problems of Democracy classes that we prepare ourselves to become good citizens in the world of tomorrow.

MR. LEADER shows his class in Problems of Democracy how the new Congress will be arranged. This is one phase of the course that is thoroughly discussed in class.

we strive for national peace

THESE STUDENTS certainly seem to be interested in what their Problems of Democracy teacher, Mr. Thompson, is saying. No doubt they are all aware of the value of this course. Here guided by this capable teacher they learn about the problems that confront the United States.

MISS ISRAELITE must be giving some very important information to the class for they are all very busy taking down notes. The students must realize the importance of this note taking for they look very serious.

HISTORY — world

Our history department introduces us to the wonders of the past, the realities of the present, and the possibilities of the future. In our study of history we learn to emulate accomplishments of the past years and to benefit from past mistakes. These essential facts of history widen our own horizons. A study of history in addition to supplying us with general culture is a key to related subjects. Because it teaches judgment, its study is vital for the successful functioning of democracy.

MR. PIEROTTI points out Greece to his World History students, who are now studying about this land of beauty and culture.

"WHAT ARE SOME notable facts concerning the German invasions?" Miss Spring asks her World History class. Someone seems to know the answer.

of the past

WE'RE GLAD you're so interested in American history and realize the importance it has in your lives as citizens of your school and your country.

ALL RIGHT, JUDY, let's hear your opinion about the battle. Here Mr. Max Leader guides a college course class through the realms of U. S. History.

NOT ONLY PAST events but up-to-date problems are discussed in Mr. Berenson's history class.

Arts and Skills —

For the mechanically inclined boys, Chelsea High School offers excellent courses in printing, woodwork, and auto mechanics. Mr. Floyd Folsom directs the printing classes which capably produce programs, notices, and less popularly, report cards and warning cards. Meanwhile the busy saws and machines of Mr. Daniel Santry's classes give voice to the skill of the woodwork group. Mr. Arthur Hagan's lads diligently study the intricacies and care of automobiles. Here in these classes boys are fitted to the precise demands of the mechanical world today.

HERE MR. SANTRY shows his manual training class the correct way of using a new saw, one of the more advanced type.

MR. FOLSOM POINTS out the workings of a paper cutter to two future printers. Watch that finger, boy!

WHAT IS SO FASCINATING, Mr. Hagan? I'm sure you won't mind that extra grease on your hands if it will help make our boys capable mechanics in the future.

the training that aids the world

THE PUPILS of the art class show their accomplishments to Mr. Tringale, who is another newcomer to Chelsea High School. Mr. Ridge goes over a musical lesson with an attentive group.

The progress of the nation depends on those talented few who are able to add to the musical, artistic, and mechanical fields of our country's development. In our high school, these divisions are skillfully handled by Mr. Francis X. Ridge, director of music, Miss McDonald, mechanical drawing instructor, and Mr. Tringdale, head of the free hand drawing department. These capable teachers try to pass their knowledge and abilities on to the students of Chelsea High, who wish to further their prospective talents into flourishing vocations.

MISS McDONALD DISPLAYS the blue prints from which this model house was made. This is one phase of mechanical drawing that is thoroughly taken up.

MISS PAINTER DEMONSTRATES to an attentive group the technique in holding the basketball before passing it.

WE GATHER FROM the expression on Miss Painter's face that ping-pong is fun. Through her own expert skill in athletics, Miss Painter directs these interested spectators in the essentials of good sportsmanship.

Gym and First Aid — building and

"A sport for everybody and everybody in a sport" is the underlying theme of the Physical Education department.

Our high school offers limited facilities for activities but even with this slight handicap, the pupils are taught many team games such as volleyball, basketball, softball and dodgeball. Individual achievement is also measured in the physical education classes through a series of skills. Some of the intramural activities are tennis, archery, basketball, and bowling.

The course in First Aid teaches the students how to give immediate and temporary aid to the victim of a sudden accident or illness. This course is offered to the junior boys and girls. They are taught the application of tourniquets, artificial respiration, location of the different pressure points and the manner of transporting bodies.

DR. STONE HOLDS UP "good time Charlie" as Miss Painter demonstrates the ideal elbow bandage. "First you find the elbow, then the wound. This is how to bandage it." Dr. Stone and Miss Painter ably guide their classes in First Aid.

WHAT'S YOUR LUNG CAPACITY? Here in the boys' gym class Mr. McCarthy proceeds to find out by using a special device designed for that purpose.

CALISTHENICS IS practiced to build strong bodies in our boys' gym class which is ably directed by Mr. McCarthy.

caring for bodies

MR. KIPNES DEMONSTRATES to his first aiders the correct way of applying a tourniquet.

Cafeteria and

With the aid of the faculty and students our cafeteria operates efficiently. Everyone enjoys the economical meals served daily. For only a quarter, a delicious hot dinner can be purchased. A complete turkey dinner is served at Thanksgiving and Christmas time. The majority of the students are accommodated at the tables and chairs. Sandwiches and milk are available at the snack bar.

AFTER EATING LUNCH, many of the girls and boys enjoy ice cream or cookies while discussing the events of the day with their chums.

THERE MUST BE an extra tempting meal for lunch today for the girls are all smiles as they get their trays and silverware.

THE BOYS AND GIRLS not only enjoy good food in our cafeteria, but they also can eat in pleasant surroundings and at clean tables.

Library —

food for thought

Our library is a place for study and relaxation. Capably directed by Miss Zita Flynn, our library supplies not only the books for required and supplementary reading, but also stimulates our interest in recreational reading. Books are on open shelves so the students may easily get them. Here also are the latest periodicals designed to lure us into the book habit:

HERE IN THE pleasant school library the students are able to do their studies with the use of the many reference books at their disposal.

MISS FLYNN, our capable librarian, is very helpful to the users of the school library in their selections of good books. These three seem to have found some interesting ones.

Here come the graduates

Mr. Webber's interest extends even to the individual problems that may confront the students of The Chelsea Senior High School. Through his close association with Mr. Robert W. O'Brien, the senior class advisor for 1951, he makes his interests known and does his utmost to help solve our many problems.

Our Chosen Leaders

HOWARD JOHNSON, our president, has gained a host of friends through his cheerful, tireless efforts in our behalf. Twice elected to lead our class, he has come through admirably to our benefit. Well done, Hut! We appreciate it.

IN THE IMPORTANT position as vice-president and chairman in charge of all committees we find William French. Billy is the friend of the class and a capable person for the job of second in charge of the ship of our affairs.

ARLENE HAYES, our class secretary during both junior and senior years, has certainly displayed her ability and intelligence in performing the duties of secretary. Her popularity is evident in her second election as a member of our student executive body.

GEORGE ALLEN is another one of our officers to be elected twice for the same position. His work in our behalf during the junior year and his ability for forming friendships brought about the trust we put in our senior treasurer.

EACH YEAR the student body elects to the senior council their most popular and most capable members. The following are chosen by the class to represent them in all business that is transacted by the senior class: (First Row) Fred Shaughnessy, Carol Casey, Stella Melnick, Ella Hawri-

The Guiding Hands

On the first occasion of senior voting we express our choice of representation in the election of our senior government. Each home-room elects one boy and one girl who together with the class officers comprise the senior council.

Under the excellent and appreciated guidance of our class adviser, Mr. Robert O'Brien, the council settles all the contracts and the general business of the senior class. The members express the opinions of the home rooms and report all transactions to their classes. Under their jurisdiction are Class Day, The Senior Prom, The Reception, and The Senior Play. We know we have put our trust in the right people.

MR. O'BRIEN, senior class adviser, is always willing to help the class officers and student council with all their problems. Under his patient guidance all the senior class activities are planned.

the ranks of honors

Our class prophet is Connie Riconscente, the second highest ranking student in the college and technical courses. All through her years at the senior high school Connie has received excellent grades, and has always been on hand to do more than her share. Connie has been a member of the yearbook executive committee, program chairman for the Latin Club, and has taken part in other extra-curricular activities.

Shirley Mindel, the second highest ranking student of the Commercial Course, is our class historian. Shirley, as well as being on the honor roll many times, has taken an active interest in school affairs. She has been a member of the French Club and was an usherette at graduation. Although Shirley's plans for the future are somewhat vague, she does plan to continue her education in the business field.

Our class statistician, Melvin Levine, is the second top ranking student in the General Course. "Mel" worked hard to bring all the facts and figures of the 1951 class before you. He has been active in school life as the manager of the senior play and as a member of both the band and traffic squad. To pursue his chosen career in business, "Mel" plans to attend both Burdett College and Clark University.

Senior

CAROL CASEY, our vivacious cheering squad captain, was selected the most popular girl. Carol's cheerfulness, along with her sense of humor and sparkling personality, makes her liked by everyone.

BILLY FRENCH, senior vice-president, was selected the best looking senior boy. Thoughts of Billy, whose good looks are combined with personality and charm, have filled the dreams of many of the girls.

MARIAN WASCHUCK, tall and blond, received the title of the prettiest senior girl. Drum majorette captain, Marian has caused many favorable comments as she gracefully twirled the baton.

JACK ZALCMAN, who was selected the best dressed senior boy, well deserves that title. Jack always surprises his classmates with a different suit and his sharp socks and ties are greatly admired.

BERTHA MONTEIRO has thrilled many of her classmates with her rich, lilting voice. Bertha was well chosen the most talented senior and she is certain to reach great heights with her singing.

Personalities

HOWARD JOHNSON, senior class president and football captain, because of his friendliness and football ability, has been well chosen the most popular boy and the most outstanding senior athlete.

CLAIRE CASSIN has been aptly chosen the most intellectual senior and the girl most likely to succeed. Claire is a high ranking student who is both capable and ambitious.

PAUL CHLUDZINSKI, chosen the boy most likely to succeed, is sure to make a name for himself. Paul has a good scholastic rating and a personality that will lead him to success.

CHOSEN THE BEST dressed girl was Patricia Quigley, who always wears the right thing at the right time and seems to have a sixth sense for color and style.

School spirit and fun

We see Mr. Webber earnestly talking to Mr. Cotter about the athletic functions of the school. Mr. Webber is keenly interested in all activities of the school and supervises everything that is done. Here we see his influence exerted over another phase of our school life.

High hopes were held forth for a 1950 Red Devil grid season. But, a large number of the previous squad graduated, the increased injuries, all of weight and physical dimension, was far from a success. Nevertheless, encounters, although greatly outwe

September 17 marked the commencement of the Chelsea High Red Devil grid season, as Chelsea played host to a strong Somerville squad. Although the encounter ended with Chelsea in a 32 point deficit, the squad, handicapped with a lack of last year's seasoned veterans and using a majority of inexperienced sophomores, showed great potential strength and future dependability as later scores proved. Memorable the Lawrence encounter in which our Red Devils powered their way to a revengeful 6 to 6 standstill.

On the advent of the Malden encounter hard luck and misfortune had succeeded in depleting the squad, as several key starters, among these Frank Kelley, Robert DeAngelis, Arnold Kurland, and Hut Johnson succumbed to injuries. Climaxing the uneventful and discouraging season was the annual Thanksgiving Day Everett encounter. Although behind by a 29 point deficit on the final gun, the game exemplified by the undimishing loyalty and spirit of both the squad and Red Devil fans.

THE FOOTBALL TEAM owes its success to the able backing of their coach, Henry M. McCarthy. Coach McCarthy has won the admiration of players and spectators alike by his patience, his genial manner, and his sense of humor.

THESE ARE TWO of the many thrilling scenes of our traditional "turkey day" game with Everett. Upper Picture: It looks as if one of our Chelsea boys has found an opening. "Go to it, Hal! Get that pigskin down the field." Lower Picture: "He's got the ball, so we'll get him," runs through the minds of our jolting tackles. Then their skill and training work together in carrying out the order.

Quintets for success

Basketball at our high school is one of the sports highlights of the year. This year, as well as in other years, Mr. Nechtem, our coach, led the team, outfitted in their traditional red and black uniforms of Chelsea High, onto the court, and on to another Chelsea basketball season. Game after game, our team proved to the students and alumni that what they lacked in height, they made up for in spirit and aggressiveness. Although many games were lost, and a poor record was turned in for the year, the graduating class and the alumni keep looking forward to next year, when a new Chelsea team will take the floor, to try and uphold the great records and traditions set by previous classes.

CHELSEA SHOWS CLASS against Somerville, with Joe Costello carrying the ball in for a score. "Long John" Phillips, rangy center, is under the boards as usual to lend his support to the team.

THESE ARE THE BOYS that were chosen to be the guides of Chelsea High School. First Row: Marshall Lamb, Arnold Promisel, Albert Kramer, Joseph Thomas, Albert Weiner, Albert Walker, David Chalfin. Second Row: Francis Wronski, Edward Swartz, Arthur Barnett, Lawrence

They guide our steps

This year's traffic squad, under the capable direction of Mr. Harold Thompson, continues to uphold the distinction of former years. These overseers of the corridor maintained law and order in a friendly and pleasing manner. Its duties are not only confined to between-period filing, but also during the recess period in the cafeteria. Also on special occasions such as assemblies, Parent-Teacher meetings and Career Day exercises, they escort the different guests to their respective rooms.

Hodierni Romani

Amicitiam et scientiam per Latinum! "Friendship and knowledge through Latin," says the club motto, and that is exactly what is obtained in the Latin Club.

The activities at the meeting provide interesting information and pleasing recreation. Under the guidance of Miss Ella M. Deasy and Miss Agnes Burnett, the members offer presentations that bring about co-operation and friendliness among them. Hodierni Romani have attained success as an informative, entertaining organization.

TWO EAGER ROMANS, Diane Rodman and Gerry Rosenfeld, listen attentively to what Cicero, Harvey Gellar, has to say.

Le Cercle Francais

The French Club, which is directed by Miss Frances Connolly and Miss A. Brodbine, presents at each of its meetings entertaining French skits, songs, and poems, prepared by club members, sophomores, juniors and seniors alike. The club's aims are to allow the French students to better acquaint themselves with the French language and customs, about which they are studying in their classrooms, and to create an interest in the French language. The club not only succeeds in fulfilling these aims but also provides a source of pleasure and immeasurable enjoyment to all its members.

Deutscher Verein

In the classroom we study the construction, idiom, and vocabulary of the German language. However, there is no time for the highlights which add color and culture to the study such as German literature, songs and customs. Out of necessity for these the German Club has been organized. Under the eager supervision of Miss Severance, our German teacher, the students put on plays and learn the songs and customs of Germany. It is the intention of Miss Severance that the students themselves plan the meetings of the club since this affords a chance for our own responsibilities and co-operation. Thus from the inexhaustible sources of German culture the students themselves construct their programs.

THE DIRECTORS of "Die Viec Tannenbaume" seem amused at something Robert has said. We have heard that this skit for the German Club was a tragedy.

My worthy opponent . . .

Resolved: That a Debating Club Is an Important Part of Our School Life. Debating develops skill in public speaking and ability to think quickly and to judge an argument accurately. Members are increasing their debating ability and having fun at the same time.

The national subject this year was Resolved: That the Welfare State Should Be Rejected. Home and home debates were heatedly contested with high schools of Revere, Everett, and Malden.

The club was organized in 1950 after an interim of several years and interest is high. Mr. John F. Ridge gives much time directing the club in its undertakings and in making the club a rousing success.

HERE IS A GROUP of powerful orators attentively listening to what their coach, Mr. John Ridge, has to say about resolutions, material, preparation, and delivery.

HERE IS A GROUP of young debaters who have so aptly defended our school upon the debating platform. (First Row) Albert Savitsky, Marjorie Hammil, Marian Waschuck, Herbert Paris, Marjorie Sokol, Sandra Mazow, De-

Strike up the band

THE MEMBERS of the Chelsea High School band in their striking red and black uniforms are seen marching down the athletic field to the tune of a peppy march. These band members, who are at hand at all the games, add a great deal to the enjoyment of the spectators and to the spirit of the players as they play their inspiring music.

The fifty-six members and seven majorettes of the Chelsea Senior High School Band under the leadership of Mr. Alexander E. Cleary and Mr. Francis X. Ridge began their musical year with an eye to the coming events. Besides marching and playing at the Chelsea football games, the band holds the honor of being chosen to march beside the Boston University band at a football rally. The band at assemblies entertains and delights its audience with enjoyable musical concerts. Added to these accomplishments is the high score at the 1950 music festival and the eagerness of the band members to surpass that score at the festival in Marblehead to be held May 5. We gratefully salute the band for the entertainment it has furnished us this year.

FRANCIS X. RIDGE conducts our band with unusual gusto and makes the school rafters ring. Oh, for the maestro's interpretation of a lively march tune.

HERE MARIAN WASCHUCK, the charming leader of our majorettes, clearly demonstrates her ability to strut down the field.

HERE ARE the Chelsea High Seven, our lovely majorettes, demonstrating just how a band should be led. Pat Barry, Marilyn Safon, Marlene Lehan, Marian Waschuck, Kay Cameron, Myrna Milgram, and Faith Barrett.

"Twinkle, twinkle,

On February 15, the Senior Class presented the play "Cheaper by the Dozen."

The play, based upon the life of the Gilbreth family, presented Dad as a terrific efficiency expert who feels that what works in the factory will work at home. However, Dad doesn't understand high school girls and they in turn don't understand why Dad regards their interest in dates as a waste of precious time. The resultant conflict provided uproarious scenes and fast-paced action. The humor was genuine and delightful and the story had real meaning and importance.

The cast, under the direction of Mr. John Ridge, did an excellent job in putting across this play, and we must not forget the contributions of the "Candy Girls" and the ushers in making this a colorful evening.

"I'LL NOW DEMONSTRATE how to take a bath without waste motions," beams Mr. Frank Gilbreth to nine disappointed members of the dozen.

We give our all

Early in the year an Executive Committee was appointed whose responsibility it was to carry the yearbook into production. To Arlene Hayes fell the task of assigning and checking the copy written by the contributing editors. Connie Riconscente and Flaire Flavin decided upon the pictures to be taken and worked with photographer Nat Miller. In charge of the senior section were Diane Rodman and Geraldine Rosenfeld. Included in their work was the checking of senior write-ups submitted by the yearbook representatives, who were elected in their respective homerooms. Claire Cassin, a contributing editor and a representative, gave able assistance to the Executive Staff. Our secretaries, Oneita Newell, Gloria Smaller, and Thelma Maister, together with the typists, worked wholeheartedly to help us meet our deadline. Sumner Spivack and his committee helped finance the book by canvassing the neighborhood for "ads." The entire project was capably directed by Mr. Max E. Stewart, faculty advisor.

HERE WE SEE Mr. Stewart, our faculty adviser, who is aware of each photograph, every writeup, all advertisements and sale of books—every step in the production of the book.

His influence extends into our future

Through the pages of the Beacon we have seen Mr. Webber's influence present in every phase of our school life. As we now go out into the world and take our places in life, we are conscious that his guidance will direct us to fuller and better lives.
